POLICE BAFFLED BY CASE OF GIRL SLAIN IN PARK

Body Found in House Supposed to Be Locked, Which Has Only One Set of Keys.

NO SIGN OF A WEAPON. Brooklyn Detectives Fail to Establish the Woman's Identity.

The sound of a pistol shot in a combination lock and shelter house in Irving Square Park, Williamsburg, at an early hour to-day, attracted the attention of Policemen Kohler, of the Ham-burg avenue station. He investigated, and found lying across the top of a box of tools in an inner room, the body of a young, well-dressed woman with a bullet wound in her head.

There were no evidences of a struggle in the little apartment, which accommodated, besides the gruesome find of the policeman, a litter of rakes, lawnmowers, fuel, small tools and a stove. The contents on the body of the woman was not disarranged. The only mark upon her skin was that showing the point of entry of the bullet.

At first sight the case appeared to be one of suicide. Mystery intervened, however, when a search of the room failed to bring forth the pistol with which the woman had been killed. More extended search was equally fruitless, and the Hamburg avenue precinct plainclothes men-elect in a number who had been detailed to the case, were reluctantly forced to accept the theory that the woman had been murdered by a man who escaped, carrying his weapon.

No Marks on Clothing.

There were no marks upon the clothing by which the identity of the dead woman could be established. She was hairless and carried no purse. She wore the wool box upon which she was found was a new umbrella with a silver handle, which had been purchased at a department store in Manhattan.

The woman had dark, thick hair and hazel eyes. She wore a white, long-trimmed shirt waist, a black mohair black and gray stockings, tan shoes and a black and gray undershirt. In the bosom of her waist was concealed a small silver watch attached to a delicate silver chain.

An added degree of mystery in the case is the fact that the tool house in which the body was found, a signpost on the corner of the street, was closed at 8 o'clock the next morning. Policemen Kohler, who found the body, says the outer door was locked half an hour before he heard the sound of the shot, because he tried it on his rounds.

Besides the lock on the outer door there was another on a door leading into the inner room in which the body lay. Both locks were of the spring variety, snapping when the door was closed. The outer door was opened from the outside by the manipulation of specially designed keys. When Policemen Kohler, following the sound of the pis-

$29,000,000 OIL TRUST FINE SET ASIDE ON APPEAL

Court Orders New Trial in Reversing Findings of Judge Landis.

SUSTAINS ALL POINTS SAYS EVIDENCE WAS WRONG-FULLY EXCLUDED AND CALLS PENALTY EXCESSIVE.

CHICAGO, July 22.—By unanimous opinion of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh District, the famous case of the Government against the Standard Oil Company, in which the latter was fined $29,000,000 by Judge Landis in the District Court, must be retried.

This opinion, concurred in by Judges Baker and Seaman, was delivered here to-day by Judge Grosscup, who wrote it. The concluding sentence of the opinion reads:

"The judgment of the District Court is reversed and the case remanded with instructions to grant a new trial, and proceed further in accordance with this opinion."

The opinion begins with a brief statement of the manner in which the case was brought from the District Court to the Court of Appeals. Section No. 5, of the Interstate Commerce act, relating to the publishing and filing of rates, is quoted and the opinion continues:

"There are 163 assignments of error taking up sixty-seven pages of printed record. In view of the conclusion, however, to which we have come it is unnecessary to review many of these assignments. The ones reviewed covering all the propositions of law that we deem essential to the guidance of the District Court in the event of a second trial. Comprehensively stated, the assignments of error, which we shall review, relate:

The Points Reviewed.

"First.—To the view adopted by the trial court carried out in its rulings on the admission and exclusion of evidence and embodied in its charge to the jury, that a shipper can be convicted of accepting a concession from the lawfully published rate, even though it is not shown as bearing on the matter of intent that the shipper at the time of accepting such concession knew what the lawful published rate actually was."

"Second.—To the view adopted by the trial court that the number of offenses is the number of carloads of property transported, irrespective of whether each carload was the whole or the part only of a single transaction resulting in a shipment; and,

Wherein Landis Erred.

That Judge Landis was wrong in assuming that it was the business of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana to make sure that the rates tendered to be by the Alton Railroad were the lawfully published rates. This, it was held, threw an unfair burden upon the shipper, whoever he might be, and tended to check rather than promote industry."

That Judge Landis was wrong in his view that the number of offenses involved were the number of carloads of property transported regardless of whether each carload constituted the whole or a part only of a single transaction resulting in a shipment."

That Judge Landis was wrong in basing his fine, $29,000,000, upon the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which the upper court held was not a defendant, instead of upon the capital stock of $100,000,000 of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the legal defendant.

Early Retrial Probable.

News of the decision spread through the Federal Building rapidly. United States District Attorney Sims held a hurried conference with his assistants who had aided him in the prosecution before the District Court, after which he said:

"All I can say now is that what has happened was not expected. However, we shall make the best of it. Undoubtedly there will be an early retrial of the case."

John S. Miller, Alfred D. Eddy, Moritz Rosenthal and Chauncey Martin, who did the active work in defense of the oil corporation, gathered in a large room in the court-room after court adjourned.

"We are free to confess that the decision is gratifying to us," said Mr. Miller, "although it is nothing more than we expected."

Americans Making Good in Jumps and Running Events.

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 22.—The American athletes continued to score in the Olympic games to-day, although they met defeat in the greatest race of the day, the 100-metre (109 yards) dash, which was captured for South Africa by R. E. Walker, J. A. Rector, University of Virginia, and Kerr, Canada, struggled for second place, while the speedy American captured, but with only a few inches to spare.

Finish Was Close.

Walker, who had the pole, got off first at the crack of the pistol. Rector, who had been second position, drew up to him at 50 yards, and for a few yards the two men ran a splendid race. Then Walker forced slightly ahead. It was a close and exciting finish. Walker, Rector and Kerr were so close together that most of the spectators did not know who had won until the numbers were posted on the blackboard. Walker was half a yard ahead of Rector at the tape, while Kerr was so nearly abreast of Rector that the judges decided that second place had been won "by inches."

Walker was outclassed and came in a few yards behind.

"We can't expect to win everything, we must be satisfied with what we get," said Matthew P. Halpin, the manager of the American team.

Walker's victory was most popular with the crowd, and the officials all rushed to the finishing place, surrounded the victor and cheered him. At the same time, the thousands all around the vast oval stood up on their seats and cheered, while the air was full of straw hats. Then the green-tinted athlete was raised by his friends and borne off on their shoulders.

When he passed the American stand the spectators there gave him a great demonstration. A red Union Jack with the African arms on the field went up the staff with the Stars and Stripes below it, and at this cheering broke out again. The Englishmen were gratified to see the monotonous success of the American victories broken by a Britisher, even if he was a colonist.

Queen Congratulates Winner.

After the race Walker donned a jacket and trousers and was escorted to the royal box, where Queen Alexandra, the Duke of Connaught and the Crown Prince, Prince of Wales, were seated.
